OUR STORY

UMW began its journey as an auto repair shop in Orchard Road, Singapore. The business which was known then as United Motor Works quickly blossomed, making it the go-to place for auto repairs. Not long after, it managed to procure the distributorship for automotive parts under General Motors, a formidable name in the automotive industry in America.

In 1991, the rapidly expanding business was consolidated into an establishment called United Motor Works (Pty) Ltd, a subsidiary of the UMW Group you see today.

Intensive landscaping and a well-kept outdoor garden create not only a connection to nature but also provide a cool and shaded ambient environment for the occupants. This, coupled with a green roof, helps to further reduce urban heat and offset, at least in part, the heat-island effect associated with asphalt and concrete landscapes.

Intensive landscaping and a well-kept outdoor garden means not only convenient regreening but also provides a cool and shaded ambient environment for the occupants. This, coupled with a green roof, helps to further reduce urban heat and offset, at least in part, the heat-island effect associated with asphaltic landscape.

- Thermal Comfort via Radiant Cooling

  - Coating in the Groundbuilding is activated via radiant cooling slides that have a diffused water coolant embedded in the concrete slab itself. This is complemented with the conventional cold air supply system.
  - At the highest heat capacity of the building is stored in the concrete mass, direct cooling of the concrete slabs with embedded water pipes is one main efficiency means to cool the building mass.
- Water Control

  - The advantage of the above cooling system is that the air ventilation rate is reduced significantly. The noise from the ducts is also reduced significantly, improving the acoustical comfort.
